

Group 3: Collaborative Writing, Narration

Write a story on any subject of your choice using Teju Cole's approach. One person can start with their entry and each will add to it until the story is complete. Remember to use the principles of narration (e.g., plot, suspense, literary devices). Also each entry should not exceed 140 characters. You can add images/videos/audios to enhance the story

NANCY HENAKU APR 01, 2021 11:02AM

In a town called Tanku lived a very beautiful girl named Adjoa. She had many admirers and haters as well.

She was the talk of the town and many men sought for her hand in marriage

People thought she was rude, but she was just very careful since she had a terminal illness people didn't know about.

Adjoa preferred to do things alone. Going to the market, a date, a play and, even to church.

This made people think she was mean and wanted nothing to do with others

Francis and Tendai, the notorious boys in town finally decided to approach her.

But Adjoa, knowing the kind of life they lived in the village did not even give them a chance.

They were very furious and hatched a plot against her.

"You think you're particular, you think we see you as the flower in this town? well you are just but the dust in the ground", the furious boys murmured.

Kojo Asare, a young farmer heard what these guys were plotting and decided to help out Adjoa.

Kojo visited Adjoa and told her all what he had heard. Adjoa didn't believe him at first

She thought it was just his plan to gain her trust.

But she started getting strange feelings whenever she would be next to those men.

One night on her way from church, Adjoa came across Francis and Tendai

Kojo had informed her that these were the two boys that were involved in plotting against her

They started to insult her and touch her uncomfortably

Soon Kojo came to her rescue and scared the notorious young men away

She eventually falls for Kojo as well and tells him about her illness

It was a herculean task but Kojo was head over heels in love with Adjoa so he did his best.

Kojo helped her through all this. He sent her to hospitals for check ups and bought drugs.

Unfortunately, Adjoa had a few months to survive from her terminal illness.

But unfortunately there was really nothing he could do

Kojo stayed with Adjoa until her last breath
